

The figure shows a schematic representation of the VHTR (Very High Temperature Reactor), together with the hydrogen production plant connected to it, which is based on the previously mentioned high-temperature technologies—HTWE and TcWSC. Such a reactor produces heat at temperatures of up to 1000 °C and enables the cogeneration of electricity and hydrogen.